Mokena Central Point In Rock Island $100,000 Improvement Project

The Rock Island is preparing to spend $100,000 on track improvements between Blue Island and the town of Rockdale west of Joliet and has begun work on this big project at Mokena. The Rock Island is now planning to greatly improve the operation of its trains in the Joliet Chicago area by using both tracks at the same time for moving its trains. It is proposed to use the east and west bound tracks for the movement of trains to Chicago in the morning and the same toward Joliet in the evening. As Mokena is the central point between Blue Island and Rockdale, trains will be switched onto the various tracks from here.

The Mokena depot is to be equipped with tower signal mechanism with which switches and crossing signals will be operated. The telegraph office is being extended out about four feet. This is to provide extra room for the new mechanism.

Three operators are to be stationed at Mokena, making this a 3 track job. The operators are to operate the new signal apparatus. It will therefore mean that the Mokena depot will have an operator every day, Sunday and holidays.

The Rock Island is also making other improvements. The side track in front of the depot is being torn up and trains will enter the passing track west of the depot. The side track in back of the depot is also to be partly eliminated and a stub will be used. The side track at the Bowman Dairy plant will also be removed. The two flagmen now employed here will be removed as the crossings are to be protected by automatic signals to be operated from the depot.

The Rock Island expects to have all the improvements completed and in working order by September 1st. Fifteen new signals are to be tallied between Blue Island and Joliet. The yards at east Joliet are to be moved further east.

New steel rails are also being laid on part of the tracks this summer. A force of laborers are located here now laying steel. They have just finished a similar job at Tinley Park.

These improvements are providing much employment for the summer. The Rock Island has always had a progressive policy and is ever ready to be of the best service to its many patrons.

Wolf Road Bill May Be Revived

The gas tax bill up in the legislature now is demanding much interest in this section. If this measure should pass and become a law, it is thought that the Wolf Road bill as introduced by Rep. John M. Jenco asking for a $200,000 appropriation to build six miles of concrete from route 51 south of Mokena thru Mokena to the Will and Cook county highway, may yet come into its own. The Mokena Development Association will meet at the Mokena school house next Monday evening and invite the community to attend as many important matters are to be considered.

Petitions Out For Annexing Subdn. To Mokena

A number of Chicago people who bought lots in the McIntosh subdivision north of Mokena are anxious to build, but feel that before they do so they would like to have city water, lights and sidewalks extended out there and are therefore getting signers to a petition which they will present to the Mokena village council at their next meeting, June 29th asking them to annex this subdivision to the village and thus extend the incorporate limits. Just what action the board may take on the matter has not been indicated.

Another move is also on to have the Marti school district north of Mokena annexed to the Mokena school district for the reason that the school in the Marti district has been closed for five years. The children of the district are going to the Mokena school and by so doing the district is making money on the deal as the tuition is less than what it would cost the district to maintain a school. After a school is not in use for a certain length of time it is automatically annexed to the district adjoining under the law it is said.

Vaudeville at St. Mary's Hall at Mokena, June 19

"Looky Ma. is that clown blowing on his fingers to keep them warm? No. He is making music? That's happy Joe Paul.

His and similar comments are always heard in the vaudeville audiences of "Happy Joe" Paul radio's premiere soloist. Everywhere he goes he's like the Pied Piper of Hamelin attracts attention with his novel musical instruments of which he is the sole designer.

The blowing fingers stunt is produced with the musical gloves which consists of organ reeds in the fingers of regular gloves.

Hey ma, what are those funny bells and balloons and things he has with him? continues the curious boy.

Those are some more of Happy Joe's instruments. Wait a while and perhaps he will play them.

The contrivances in question are a musical umbrella, sleighbells, bellows, a flagelot or flute, musical glasses, chromatic scale of flexitones and a chromatic scale of jazz whistles.

These radical variations of musical instruments have all been conceived by the versatile brain of Happy Joe himself and for the most part have been built under his supervision. They have been constructed from such common place things as bellows, bolts, ukelele bodies and table glasses.

But the instrument which Happy Joe plays more than any other over the radio is his musical saw. He uses an ordinary carpenter's saw selected from fifty-eight others at a hardware store and played with a violin bow or by bending it at various angles.

On the vaudeville stage Happy Joe and his wife who always accompanies him, are known as the Architects of Nonsensical music. Another side to the clown's versatility shows him doing character work in Dutch, Italian, Old Maid, Irish and Hebrew parts, as well as hand cuff work clowning rope trick sand and novelty paper tearing.

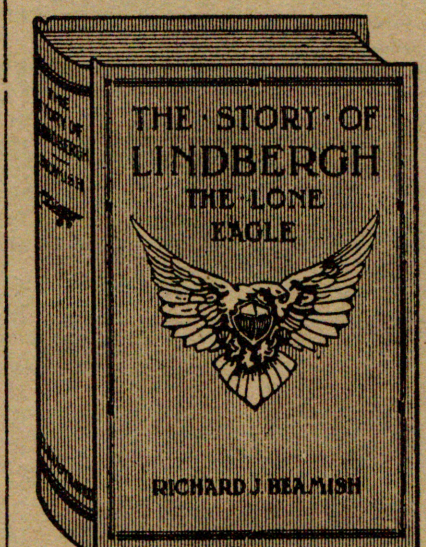

The son of a circus performer Happy Joe falls naturally into his entertaining.

Besides Happy Joe Paul and his wife, we will have with us Frank Gallagher, the Chicago Comedian, who's motto is "Let her go Gallagher. Many a laugh will he elicit from you by his monologues and pianologue.

There is also Jack Meade and his wife. Jack is clever at jiggling, at the tambourines, and at singing popular songs. His wife will also entertain you with a few classical songs. Helen Lucille Eaton, Mary Virginia Wachendorfer and Barney Welsh will amuse you with their dances, such as the Chinese dance taps, toe dances etc.

Last but not least is our good old friend Troppe, the one man band. Fred plays several instruments at one and the same time. Fred is good. If you want a good time, a thousand and one laughs do not fail to attend one of the performances Sunday, June 19, either at 3 p. m. or 7:30 p. m. sharp. Free dancing after the evening performance.

Monday, June 13th Is A Hoodoo Day For Sheriff Markgraf of Will County

Closing Arguments In Weston Case Being Made Now

The election contest for the office of Sheriff of Will County wherein Alvah M. Weston, et al, contested the right of Albert E. Markgraf, to hold the office and being heard before County Judge Ralph C. Austin, for the past several months drew to a close Monday night when Attorney David R. Anderson, Attorney for Weston, closed his final argument.

Judge Austin thanked the Attorney's for both sides which were Edward K. Nadeinoff and David R. Anderson for Weston and Robert W. Martin and William C. Mooney for Markgraf, for the fine way they have conducted themselves during this long-drawn out trial. Judge Austin then said he would decide the case and bring in his opinion as soon as possible and that it would not be for at least a week.

Mr. Anderson started his argument in reply to what Attorney Martin had previously argued. He put these into four points as follows: First: Disfranchising Voters, Second: Disfranchising Markgraf, Third: Purity of the Ballot, Fourth: Honest Count.

Mr. Martin, in his argument had said that it was not customary to disfranchise a voter because there was apparent fraud on the part of the election officials of other persons. That they [Voters] had nothing to do with the fraud and therefore, could not be disfranchised of their vote. He also stated there was a statute that would punish the persons guilty of fraud and that another Court would have to do it.

Mr. Anderson, talking on point one, read many Supreme Court rulings on the disfranchisement of votes of individual votes and also where the Court had disfranchised the votes of whole Wards and precincts for fraud.

Among the things Attorney Anderson asked the Judge was this: "IS WILL COUNTY GOING TO VOTE STRAIGHT AND RECEIVE AN HONEST COUNT" "WHEN THE BALLOT BOX RECEIVES A FRAUDULENT VOTE THEN THE SANCTITY OF THE BALLOT IS DESTROYED".

Mr. Anderson said before the noonday recess that "NO LAW SUIT TRIED IN THE PAST 25 YEARS HAD AS MUCH IMPORTANCE AND MEANT SO MUCH VITALLY TO EACH INDIVIDUAL AS THIS ONE".

When Mr. Martin made his argument he said that if a precinct was thrown out and the office of sheriff was taken from Markgraf, a man would be punished who had nothing to do with the fraud that [continued on back page]

1 Killed In Daring Broad Daylight Jail Break

Seven murderers up to tricks, One got out of the pen, then there were six. Six murderers made a dash for life, One made a get away then there were five. Five murderers made a jail break once more, One was shot, then there were four. Four murderers fought to get free, One escaped, then there were three.

The above is a modern version of the famous old nursery rhyme and especially does it apply in Will County's notorious second county jail break on Monday noon when four of the notorious Klein murderers overpowered the inner jail guards and succeeded in getting out in the stockade surrounding the scaffold on which they are to be hung and then attempted a bold daylight get away. A young ex-soldier out of work who had come to Joliet on a freight looking for work witnessed the daring dash for liberty, but nibbled the get away in the bud by grabbing a rifle and firing. One desperado was killed and another one injured so he could not flee, but in the melee one of the killers escaped, thus endangering other useful lives, for these tough eggs will kill soon as look at you. Out of the original seven murderers who escaped from the pen a year ago after stabbing warden Klein to death, three have so far eluded the law and are at large following 3 notorious jail breaks, one tough is dead, so that only three are left to face the hang man's noose and if they stage any more jail breaks, it may be possible that they will all fly the coop and the hang man will be out of a job.

The whole affair shows laxity, stupidity, and incompetence on the part of those delegated to guard these desperate criminals. Following the jail break in March the grand jury returned a scathing report and made certain recommendations to the county board, but that body evidently pigeon holed the report as no more has ever been heard of it.

It cost over $20,000 to try and convict the six murderers beside what it is costing every day now for special guards, and all for what? What is the use of having a jury pass a verdict on murderers if such verdict is not enforced and the murderers allowed to escape?

Will County needs a mighty big political house cleaning and we do not mean maybe. There is something decidedly rotten in Denmark at present all right.

in the woods"—the dance of the heath hens.

At daybreak the heath hens meet on certain dancing grounds, which they have apparently picked out in advance, and there they go through a series of antics which are as curious for human beings to watch as no doubt a charleston contest would be for the heath hen to watch. The birds run, jump, bow, and cackle in their unique pastime. Their short tails are cocked forward over their backs, the black neck feathers stand out stiffly at different angles until at last they point directly forward over the crested heads like the ears of a jack-rabbit. Their breasts are puffed up and the air sacs are distended until the bird looks almost twice his natural size. They prance backward and forward, flapping their wings, and from their throats come a series of squeals, cackles, clucks, chuckles and laughing sounds. Often, two birds will run toward each other until they are almost beak to beak. Then they remain motionless for several minutes. Sometimes they fight, but for the most part, their time is spent in tooting and dancing. The morning dance usually lasts until the sun is high in the sky and then the birds scuttle back into the recesses of the 5,000 acres of scrub oak in the center of the island which they frequent. Sometimes they come out to repeat their dance again just after sunset.

If the efforts to save the heath hen are unsuccessful it will be a tragic recurrence of the fate which overtook the passenger pigeon, although the ruthless slaughter of these birds is a more shameful record to be laid at the door of Americans than will be their failure to save the heath hen. The destruction of the pigeons began within forty years after the first settlers came to New Eng-

The End of the Trail

Far to the west the vanished herds they followed
And came at last unto the journey's end;
Naught have they found save bones where

Naught now is theirs—nor food, nor fire,

Even the rainbow hope at last long fled;

land, and for the next two hundred years the killing continued. Finally, in 1878 the birds, having been driven by persecution from many states, concentrated in a few localities in Michigan, and it was during the next two decades that the wholesale slaughter which wiped them out of existence took place. The last important nesting place of the passenger pigeon was near Petoskey, in Emmet county, Michigan. There, in 1881, an army of five thousand men gathered for civilization's attack on the defenceless birds which had come there to rear their young. The attack continued from March until August and during this period of twenty weeks it is estimated that one billion birds were killed and shipped from this and neighboring nesting places.

One morning America woke up to find that the passenger pigeon was virtually extinct. It became so rare that prizes were offered for the discovery of a single specimen. The last individual definitely recorded in a wild state was captured at Bar Harbor, Maine, in 1904. In various zoological gardens a few individuals were preserved. David Whittaker of Milwaukee, Wis., procured a pair of young birds from an Indian in that state in 1888, and during the next eight years these increased to fifteen. By 1908, however, only seven of this number had survived, and at last only one, a female, was left. This bird, known as "Martha," was sent to the Cincinnati zoo and there she became famous as the last of the race.

Since the death of "Martha" persons in various parts of the country have reported from time to time the discovery of passenger pigeons, but in every case it has turned out that the discoverer had seen some other member of the dove family which is easily confused with the passenger pigeon. And so despite the high rewards that are still standing for proof that the passenger pigeon is still in existence, a single authentic specimen is yet to be revealed. So the next time you see a newspaper story stating that one of these birds has been seen, just put it down that some amateur ornithologist has made another mistake. The passenger pigeon (Ectopistes migratorius) IS extinct.

Although the heath hen is the only bird which now seems definitely doomed to follow the passenger pigeon into the sunset, there are several other species which are in danger of extinction. One of these is a close relative of the heath hen, the prairie chicken. Only a few years ago the booming of these birds was still to be heard everywhere in the prairies of the Middle West and the eastern part of the Great Plains. In many places this sound is becoming rare, and even though the prairie chicken does not now seem to be in imminent danger of extinction certainly its numbers have been so greatly reduced that it can be called a Vanishing American.

Not only in the bird world, but in the animal world as well there are Vanishing Americans. There was a time when the buffalo was so numerous that, just as in the case of the passenger pigeon, Americans would have scoffed at the idea that this noble animal could ever be in danger of extinction. So long as the buffalo was killed only to supply the food needs of the Indian and the first white settlers on its ranges, there was no danger. Then the hide hunter came upon the scene. Again two decades saw another race of native Americans headed for oblivion. By the end of the eighties, the last wild herd of buffalo had been killed off and, of all the countless millions that once roamed the plains, only a few scattering herds in private game parks and public preserves were left. Fortunately public sentiment was aroused just in time and, due to the efforts of several conservation societies during the first part of the present century, the bison was saved. There are now enough of these animals in Canada and the United States to guarantee their preservation and in recent years they have actually increased to such an extent that there has been an overcrowding on the available space which mankind has grudgingly allotted to them.

The settling up of the last West and the increasing number of farms which replaced the open range of the cattle man's day have threatened the existence of two other species of animals—the wapiti or elk and the prong horn antelope. It must be said to the credit of Americans, however, who waited until it was almost too late before they set about to save the buffalo from annihilation, that they have taken a lesson from this experience and have taken the necessary steps to prevent the history of the elk and the pronghorn from being a repetition of that of the bison.

Perhaps it is not strictly accurate to include the buffalo, the elk and the antelope, the heath hen and the prairie chicken in the same category as the passenger pigeon, as has been done in this article. But the fact remains that they, like the Indian, are vanishing races. Of course, government authorities will tell you differently about the Indian and point to the fact that he is not only holding his own, but is actually increasing in numbers. That is true if you take into account the fact that many persons having more white blood than Indian in their veins are called Indians.

But in the truest sense of the word, the old-time Indian in all his former glory as a picturesque war-bonneted nomad and "first-class fighter" man in the magnificent pageant of the American frontier is a Vanishing American. He belongs to the past, the past of the wilderness era, as do the buffalo, the elk, the antelope, the passenger pigeon, the heath hen and the prairie chicken. What if there still are enough individuals of each so that the conquering white man can point to them and say "See, they are not yet EXTINCT?" For they are following the Indian into the sunset, and James Fraser's "End of the Trail" is symbolic of them all. They ARE Vanishing Americans.

Alexander Hamilton Man to Be Loved or Hated

How they hated him, and yet no public figure, save Washington, was so adored. Men were either Alexander Hamilton's frenzied enemies or else his unshaking followers. His flaming personality left no middle ground. From the day that he came to America from the West Indies, sent by charitable subscriptions to receive an education, genius set him apart from his fellows.

A boy of twenty, serving a gun, even the reserved Washington was won to him at once, and made him his military secretary; generals received his counsel eagerly, and congress cowered before the lash of his tongue and pen.

Born out of wedlock, he moved as royally as a prince of the blood; fashioned with the exquisiteness of a Greek carving, his face was only saved from beauty by its strength; and that proud heiress, Betty Schuyler, had given him her hand in gladness.—From "Sons of the Eagle," by George Creel.

Modern Dancer Needs Supply of Calories

Hostesses should lay in a heavy supply of refreshments when they expect to entertain guests who like to display their charleston proficiency, says the Kansas City Star. An account of an exhaustive survey of the energy consumed in dancing made by a group of Scandinavian scientists at the physiological institute of the University of Heisingborg, has just been received at Washington which sets down in precise figures the number of calories used in different kinds of dances.

The waltz went to the bottom of the list with 3.99 calories used per hour per kilogram of body weight. The schottische, beloved of grandfather and grandmother, scored .02 of a point below the modern foxtrot, using 4.76 calories while the latter required 4.78. The polka, another institution of grandmother's day, needed 7.56 calories an hour, while the mazurka, evidently the fastest dance the learned Scandinavians could get anyone to practice for them, took 10.87 calories, or almost twice the amount of energy consumed by the stonecutter plying his trade.

HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 228 Schaefer St., was in a run-down condition and could not do her household work. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at some time in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

The Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish other women with these names upon request.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

The corn borer bill has become a law. Governor Small signed it and handed it over to Director S. J. Stanard of the department of agriculture to administer. By virtue of its emergency clause the act becomes effective immediately. Importation into the state of anything that may carry insect infestation or plant disease may be forbidden by proclamation of the governor, and the department of agriculture is authorized to set up quarantine areas wherever it finds that a dangerous insect pest or plant disease exists, and issue and enforce regulations for the control of the pest. Provision is made, however, that advance legal publication must be made before quarantine areas are set up, and opportunity afforded for interested persons to be heard.

Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill's House Bill No. 102, which provides for the formation of sanitary districts, was referred to a joint conference committee, when the house voted to concur in senate amendments. These amendments would permit sanitary districts partially to purify sewage while construction is in progress and would allow a reasonable length of time after completion for such districts to secure 100 per cent purification. The house voted for 100 per cent purification before construction could begin. The joint committee recommended that the senate recede from its amendments. Whether or not that body complies with the recommendations of the committee will have direct application to a number of central Illinois cities whose sewage plants provide only partial purification.

Members of the executive committee of the Illinois conference of public welfare met at the Illini country club in Springfield to discuss plans for the annual meeting of the organization, October 18, 19 and 20, at Joliet. R. E. Hieronymus of the University of Illinois, president of the conference, addressed the meeting. Director Roy W. Ide of the state welfare department, ex officio member of the executive committee, and Miss Edna Zimmerman, also of the state welfare department and executive secretary of the conference, were other officials of the organization to attend the meeting.

Two bills carrying appropriations for monuments to Illinoisans were passed by the senate. One introduced by Senator Martin Bailey appropriates $25,000 for a monument to "Uncle Joe" Cannon at Danville. The other bill, introduced in the house by Representative Mary C. McAdams and supported in the senate by Senators McNay, Ursa, Kessinger, Aurora, and Denvir, Chicago, provides $8,000 for a monument to Stephen A. Douglas at Winchester, Scott county.

The house advanced to the order of second reading Representative Reed Cutler's bill appropriating $2,500 for the expense of a committee composed of a Democratic senator and representative and also Republican senator and representative to go to Washington and demand that the United States senate seat Senator-elect Frank L. Smith, in order that Illinois' right to representation be upheld.

The house passed a bill received from the committee on appropriations increasing the amount of the reward the governor may offer for the apprehension of fugitives from justice from $200 to $1,000. If the bill becomes a law it will empower Governor Small to offer a reward of $1,000 for the slayer of Highway Patrolman Lorey Price, who was kidnapped from his home near Marion and slain.

At a meeting of the Illinois Lumber and Material Dealers' association, Don Critchfield, field representative of the West Coast Lumber bureau, told his audience that the supposedly imminent lumber famine is not founded on fact. "Government foresters," Mr. Critchfield stated, "estimate that we have more than 1,000,000,000,000 board feet of timber west of the great plains."

Senator William S. Jewell's stream pollution bill, which passed the senate some weeks ago, is on order of second reading in the house. It provides for a sanitary water board, whose duties are to control and prevent pollution of the streams of the state. This measure is intended not only as a game and fish conservation measure but as a public health measure.

Barbers licensed by the state department of registration and education will have at least an eighth-grade education if Governor Small approves a bill introduced by Representative Michael Fahy, which has passed both houses.

The senate passed Senator Lowell B. Mason's bill to place dry cleaners under state supervision. The measure has as its object lessening of fire hazards and improved sanitation.

The house passed Senator McDermott's bill, which would allow cities and villages to fill in and improve sections of water courses located within the corporate limits, which have been declared nonnavigable by congress, and to make public use of the land so reclaimed. The bill now goes to Governor Small.

The state interest case against Gov. Len Small, Verne S. Curtis and Etha G. Curtis, administratrix of the estate of Senator E. C. Curtis, deceased, was settled by agreement in Circuit Judge Frank S. Burton's court in Springfield, June 4, 1927; the amount to be paid by the defendants to be $650,000. The stipulation states that Governor Small as state treasurer has accounted for and paid into the state treasury all of the interest money he received and that the Grant Park bank who handled the Packers' notes paid the same rate of interest to the state as all other banks, but the defendants are held responsible for this amount which it is claimed the bank made on the Packers' notes. While Governor Small did not profit personally by any of the transactions, he is held jointly liable on account of his position as state treasurer.

Governor Small issued the following statement relative to the settlement of the state's accounting suit: "The terms of the settlement made in the Sangamon Circuit court expressly admit the truth of the contention I have made throughout this suit, that I have fully accounted for and paid into the state treasury every dollar of principal and interest received by me for or during my term of office as state treasurer; that I have not at any time received any interest on public funds except that interest which I have heretofore paid into the treasury; and that the sum which I am agreeing to pay is money received for the Grant Park bank."

"When I became state treasurer in 1917, I and my bondsmen and no one else, became responsible for all the funds in the state treasury; the law required that the funds be deposited in banks and that the interest paid to the state treasurer by the banks belonged to the state. The law at that time recognized private banks. It was a question whatever state and national banks could give the state treasurer specific collateral as security for public money. Private banks could do so."

"I deposited large sums in the Grant Park bank, of which Senator Curtis was the head, receiving the best collateral, thereby insuring the safety of the state's funds. The long accounting which has just recently been completed shows undisputedly that the Grant Park bank paid the state more than $222,000 in interest money and that all of the principal deposited was returned to the state in full."

"By depositing the state funds in the Grant Park bank, I, as state treasurer, not only received additional collateral which made the public money absolutely safe against loss, but I secured for the state a higher rate of interest than the largest banks of Illinois would pay."

"After years of litigation the court held that I was jointly liable with the owners of the Grant Park bank, for all the profits which they made in loaning state funds and the Supreme court upheld that ruling."

"The stipulation filed today was based upon the findings of the court on the earnings of the Grant Park bank. The decisions of the courts in this case have been to the effect that I must pay regardless of whether or not I received any interest. Those decisions made necessary this settlement by me. I repeat what I have said so many times—I do not owe and never did owe the state of Illinois one cent of interest. All of the principal and all of the interest which I collected as state treasurer, has been paid into the state treasury; and the state treasurer's office during my term was run for the best interests of the state, strictly according to law."

"Senator Curtis is dead. The Grant Park bank which loaned the public money, as all other banks loaned it, for the profit of its owners, has gone out of business. The other defendants in this case are unable to pay this judgment. If it is humanly possible, I will pay it."

"Despite this great hardship, I am gratified and I believe that my friends throughout Illinois will be gratified, that in the stipulation it is recognized that I, as state treasurer, made full and complete payment to the state of all interest received by me, and that any liability is based merely upon a technical responsibility for what others received."

"I want on this occasion to assure the people of this state that, notwithstanding this crushing burden which I must bear, I will continue to serve them with all the strength and ability which I possess."

Justice Oscar Heard, Freeport, became chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court for the coming year when the court convened for the June term.

Justice Clyde E. Stone, who was chief justice during the past year, was re-elected to the Supreme bench from the Sixth Judicial district.

Senator Ben L. Smith's bill appropriating $1,000,000 for flood and cyclone relief was recalled to second reading in the senate, and amended to read $1,500,000 and to apply to flood relief only. Relief for storm sufferers is provided for by an appropriation of $250,000, carried in the omnibus appropriation bill. The cyclone relief fund will be handled by the state department of finance. Reconstruction of levees washed away in a number of counties will be under the control of the state department of purchases and construction.

SUMMERY GEORGETTE PRINTS; FOR THE VACATION WARDROBE

THE stage is "all set" for about as enchanting a midsummer fashion scene as fancy can picture. For both matron and flapper the mode has prepared delectable frocks of fluttery sheer chiffons, topped with big drooping-brim chapeaux whose colorfulness will happily join forces with the tones and tints of growing flowers and summer skies.

The gowns and hats in the picture are typical of the mode whose reign is foretold for this summer. While these lovely costumes portray the general trend toward hats big of brim and frocks daintily sheer, only the individual ensemble can convey the glory of color which will be achieved ribbons, also shoulder flowers of self fabric, are favorite trimming details. Of course you are not thinking of starting on that vacation trip without a smart jersey sports frock. If so, be of good cheer, for there is yet time to change your mind, and it's a fact your wardrobe would be sadly lacking without a pretty, becoming jersey one-piece dress or jumper suit. Nothing equal to jersey for faithful service! A jersey frock has the faculty of being tucked into any corner of auto trunk or week-end suitcase, coming forth at the propitious moment unwrinkled and ready to wear.

The jersey frock in the picture is a likeable model, because of its extreme throughout dress, headwear, footwear; likewise every accessory.

Long snug-fitting sleeves are an outstanding feature of the multi-colored, beflowered chiffon frocks as now worn. A charming vagary of the mode is to omit applied trimmings in styling these sheer transparencies, arriving at effect by a most intriguing handling of the fabric, in multitudinous drapes, panels, tiers and the like.

Side-fullness is becoming quite a factor in styling. This same is put into practice in the instance of each of the gowns in the illustration. For the dress on the standing figure, a wide sash of self-material tied over the left hip answers to the call for simplicity; likewise its extreme modesty. It makes its style appeal in such smart details as a to-the-front plaited fullness, also its twin-belt effect, these two-in-one belts being out standing in the season's showings.

Clever innovations are continually being introduced in the styling of jersey frocks. They are such as tend to maintain a lively enthusiasm for the dress or suit or ensemble of jersey. There is, for instance, the unique method of employing several shades of the same color, as in case of a blue jersey frock, which seems several cone-shaped sections together, ranging from navy through delft and marine, to palest tint, the entire cross-the now-so-extremely-modish big-bow trimming, at the same time giving the impression of a generous side-fullness.

The seated figure adopts a shirred side-insert which, while it assures the desired fullness, also attains an uneven hemline, which is also a matter of outstanding style importance.

As to the printed motif for chiffons and georgettes, fashion runs to extremes from tiny florals to huge flowers, especially roses. Colored velvet ing the blouse from one central point like rays of the sun. So deftly are the colors assembled and the fabrics manipulated, the effect is rather that of an ombre material which is dyed in the knitting. Metallic interknitted effects are smartly exploited in jersey.

Lovely for summer sportswear are pastel colored or white jersey frocks embroidered with gay woolen yarns.

Grind Feed for Money

Own the feed business with this new kind of feed mill. Every community is now, or soon will be demanding feed ground quickly in large quantities and very fine. Medium grinding, done by many kinds of mills, is no longer in demand.

This is the latest form of feed grinder. It combines the cutting action of the attrition mill with the hammering action of the hammer mill.

This mill will grind 100 lbs. of ear corn, oats, rye, barley, alfalfa, or anything grindable to any fineness, with 25% to 50% less power than any other type of grinder.

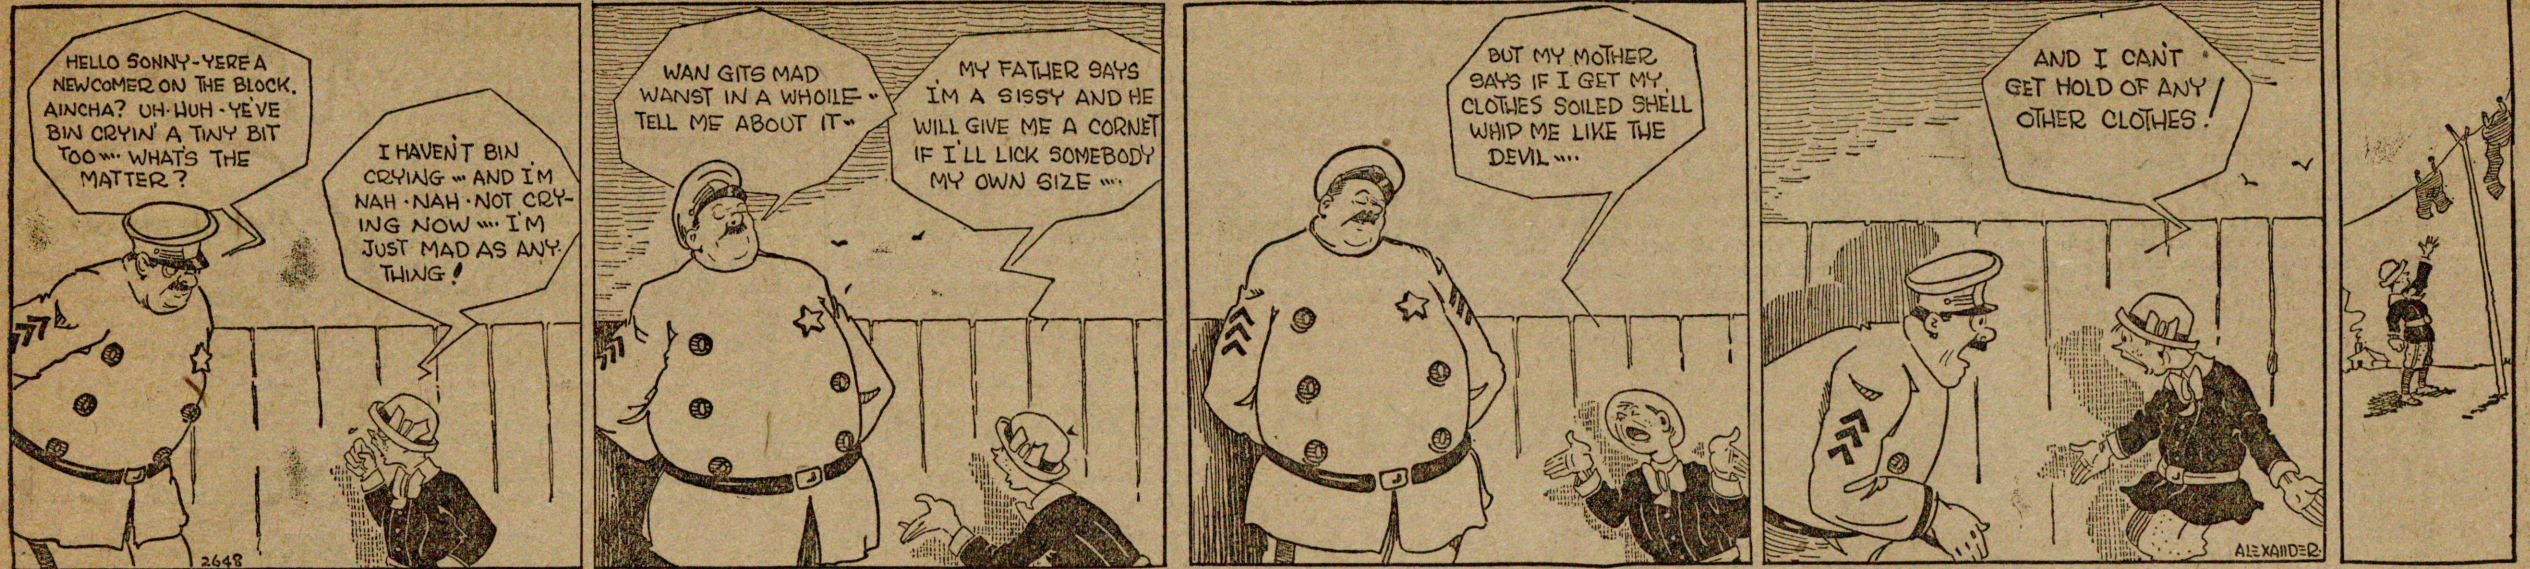

This saving in power alone makes these mills money makers all over the country. They will give you a better profit grinding feed than any other business in which you can engage on the same amount of capital. There should be one in your community.

Send for free booklet, "THE STORY OF A WONDERFUL FEED MILL," which tells you about this mill and the opportunity of making money in the all-year feed business. Complete equipments in capacities from 2,500 to 25,000 per hour, costing from $750 and up. Many mills pay for themselves in a few months.

Begin Weston Case Nearing Close

had been committed. At no time had the finger of suspicion been pointed at Markgraf during the trial.

In reply, Mr. Anderson, showed where Markgraf should be disfranchised of the office insofar as he was not legally elected to the office; also that he is reaping the benefit of the frauds of others and cited a Supreme Court ruling where office holders have been removed.

After the noonday recess, Mr. Anderson, was inspired and asked that the First and Fourteenth precincts be thrown out because of the fraud exposed in the re-count. That the Fourteenth and Twenty-fifth precincts should be thrown out because the election booths were not in full view of the election officials at all time. He asked that the fraudulent votes of the Seventeenth precinct be purged of fraud. These were thirty or thirty-five ballots marked with an ordinary pencil in the Republican Circle and a carpenter's pencil had been used in the square for Markgraf.

Mr. Mooney, Attorney for Markgraf, had told the Judge that the re-count had gained for Markgraf over two hundred votes and that the Markgraf majority had increased to over 1100 votes. Mr. Anderson had the official canvass and the official re-count figures and showed the Judge where Markgraf had gained but 39 votes over the official canvass. Also that Markgraf's majority had been reduced to 868.

Mr. Anderson, asked that the Judge in looking over the objected ballots and where he finds a ballot that had been taken from Weston by some person other than the voter that it be given back to Weston and this will make a change of two in the count.

The Court room was crowded throughout the day with persons sitting on every available spot and standing even though there was great excitement owing to the Jail Break which had occurred. This would contend to show that the people of Will County are interested in the Outcome of this contest of Sheriff of Will County.

The decision and opinion rests only with County Judge Ralph C. Austin, at the present time but is patiently awaited by the voters of Will County.
